If you're on the go, use a free music streaming app to listen to your tunes just about anywhere. We compiled a list of the best free music apps to help you enjoy your personal music library, discover new artists, identify songs, listen to streaming music, and find radio stations near you. All of these apps are completely free, and most are compatible with Android and iOS devices. Use the link to download the app or find it in the app store on your smartphone. You'll be up and running in no time. Pandora is popular for a reason. For most people, it's because they find it to be the best app for streaming music. Enter your favorite artist, and Pandora plays their songs along with similar artists it recommends. This is the easiest way to find new music similar to the songs you already love. As you listen, rate songs so that the app will play more of the music you like, or won't play songs you don't like. The service learns and improves suggestions based on your ratings. Bookmark your favorite artists to access them later, and stream podcasts from the app. The app works best when connected to Wi-Fi, so you can stream music with little to no buffering. Register for free with Pandora to save your stations and ratings across the phone app and their website if you also listen on your computer. There's a free app for iPhone, iPad, Android, Kindle Fire, Nook, Windows Phone, Windows desktop, and other devices, including smartwatches. Download For: Apple's Shazam app is a cool reverse audio search tool that's great for when you don't know the name of a song you heard in a store, during a movie, or in your car. It listens to a song that's played and tells you the name of the song and the artist. You can share your discovery, watch a music video of it on YouTube, and play it in Spotify. You can also find tour information, view a discography, read album reviews, and create a Pandora station based on that artist. Each song that's identified through the app is saved as a tag. Share these tags with your friends and view their discoveries as well. Sometimes, depending on the song it identifies, you can watch the lyrics scroll by as you listen along. If you create a user account, you can view your Shazamed music from a computer. There's also a free app for iPhone, iPad, and Android devices, as well as Apple Watch, Android Wear, and macOS. Download For: Spotify is an awesome music app that lets you follow artists and sync music from your desktop. Like Pandora, you can create a radio station so it plays recommended music based on your initial interest. Find music by viewing top lists and new releases, as well as by searching for playlists and your favorite artists and albums. Add your favorite songs to your music library and play those songs again later. One thing that makes playlists enjoyable with Spotify is that anyone can make one and share it with others so that they can play the same songs in their app. The app allows several push notifications, alerting you to things like a new album being released from an artist you follow, or when a playlist is updated. The basic version is free. If you want to remove ads, play any song at any time, download the music, and more, there are Spotify Premium plans to pick from. Get the app for Android, iPhone, iPad, Kindle Fire, and your Windows, Linux, or Mac computer. It also works well with an Apple Watch, even offering Premium users the ability to download playlists, podcasts, and albums directly to the Watch. Spotify also lets all users control playback from their Apple Watch on wireless speakers, TVs, or other devices. Download For: If you need a radio app for your mobile device, iHeartRadio has you covered. It supports tons of devices, has awesome features, shows no commercials, and finds nearby radio stations with ease. You can also listen to podcasts and create music stations based on your favorite songs, search for stations, and look in categories like 80s and 90s hits, alternative, holiday, classical, rock, oldies, and more to find the music you like. Save your favorite stations as presets and set one as an alarm clock, complete with a daily schedule and snooze option. Use the iHeartRadio music app to set a sleep timer to turn off a radio station after a certain number of minutes or hours. iHeartRadio also lets you view lyrics as you listen, see an artist's biography, and share a station with others. Upgrading to iHeartRadio Plus or All Access gives you more features beyond what the free edition allows, including unlimited skips and playlists, instant replays, and more. The apps work with Android, iPhone, iPad, iPod touch, Kindle Fire, Windows, and other devices, including Apple TV, Amazon Echo, Chromecast, gaming consoles, vehicles, and wearables. Download For: LiveOne (previously called LiveXLive, and Slacker Radio before that) has pre-programmed streaming radio stations for about every genre. While listening to a station, fine-tune it to play more of the songs that you like, or leave things a bit more open to find new kinds of music. Create new stations and playlists, as well as keep track of your favorite songs and recently played songs. The free version includes ads, doesn't play music offline, has standard-quality audio, can't play music on-demand, and doesn't let you skip an unlimited number of songs. You can upgrade to get those features. The app runs on Android, iPhone, iPad, Fire TV, Apple TV, and Roku. Download For: If you love radio but want the convenience of a mobile device, check out the free music app from TuneIn. Listen to local radio stations wherever you are, which is perfect when traveling. Enter a song or artist, and you instantly have a list of all the radio stations around the country that play that song or artist. With a push of a button, you can listen to that radio station from your phone. TuneIn also lets you access podcasts and sports radio. If you like the service, consider subscribing to TuneIn Premium for commercial-free radio and fewer ads. The app works with many devices, including Android, iPad, iPhone, Apple Watch, Windows Mobile, Windows, wearables, TVs, gaming consoles, speakers, and more. Download For: SoundCloud contains tons of audio uploaded by other users, including homemade audio and music from up-and-coming artists. Search for music, artists, and audio, and follow other users to keep track of their new uploads. A combined 10-plus hours of audio is posted every minute from other users, which means you can find something interesting. Playlists can be built on the iPhone to create a customized stream of your favorite music and share the playlists with others. Some devices let you record and upload your audio through the app. If you create a user account, access your saved songs and other data from both the app and the website. An account and subscription to SoundCloud get you ad-free listening, no previews, high-quality audio, and offline listening. You can install the app on your Android, iPhone, or iPad. Download For: YouTube Music provides a staggering number of streaming songs and videos from popular artists as well as lesser-known, niche content creators. Its powerful recommendation engine adapts seamlessly to offer songs and content according to what you played before, where you are, and what you're doing. Its smart search function helps you find songs even when you don't know the title. The YouTube Music video offerings include popular music videos along with live recordings, interviews, concert footage, and more, spanning decades of artists' work. Add songs to your library and craft playlists, or choose from a variety of preset playlists. It can build a playlist for you based on the music you like. The basic, ad-supported version is free. Music Premium ($9.99 per month) lets you listen and watch ad-free and offers an audio-only mode so that you can play a song without its video. Music continues to play even when your screen isn't activated. There's also a Family and Student plan. Try the premium edition free for 30 days and see if the upgrade is worth it. YouTube Music works with Windows, Mac, and Linux PCs and offers iOS and Android apps. Download For: Spinrilla is the best app for hip-hop mixtapes. Listen directly from the app or download the music for offline use, and browse the offerings in several ways. At the top of the app is a section for new music, popular songs, and singles. The Upcoming Tracks area of the app is complete with a countdown until the day the music will be available. Unlike some music streaming apps, this one lets you scroll back and forth through any song, leave comments on individual tracks, create playlists of the songs you see in the app, and save the music to your device. There's also a built-in radio that lets you listen to top hits, instrumental music, and location-specific radio. Get this hip-hop music streaming app for iPhone and Android. Download For: Thanks for letting us know! Tell us why! Become a fire-breathing beast! All the apps you want on your Android device Play PUBG Mobile on lower-middle range devices Battlegrounds Mobile India Unleash your bravery in this battle royale Android Accessibility Suite Help for people with vision problems Chat with all your contacts - fast, easy, and cheap The same Free Fire, better graphics Share your day using pictures Apps like Spotify, Tidal and Apple Music have changed the game when it comes to listening to music at home and on the go — access to millions of tracks from anywhere makes it seem like you have every song ever released at your fingertips. But if you're paying for a subscription to any of those apps, you should be aware that there are a lot of ways to stream music for free as well. Here are seven of the best free music apps for iPhone and Android. SpotifySpotify isn't just one of the most popular subscription music apps, it's also one of the best ways to stream music for free. You can sign up for a free Spotify account and listen to the service's full catalog of 90 million songs, though you will have to contend with ads and albums set to "shuffle mode." Those drawbacks aside, Spotify doesn't hold much back; you can search for artists, albums and songs, and you can favorite songs and artists for later. Spotify also throws in podcasts, playlists, and music sharing with friends. Download Spotify for iPhone or Android. Spotify has a catalog of 90 million songs and lets you share tracks with friends. Dave Johnson PandoraPandora works a little differently than most music apps in the sense that it's structured like a radio with stations built around musical styles. Choose an artist, for example, and you can listen to their music along with tracks by artists with a similar style. Rate the songs Pandora plays to fine-tune the app's recommendations. If you register for a free account, you can use the same settings and favorites on multiple devices, or subscribe to remove the ads. Download Pandora for iPhone or Android. Pandora's AI can suggest songs and artists based on what you listen to with unnerving accuracy. Dave Johnson TidalAudiophiles love Tidal because it offers high-fidelity, near-lossless tracks, but until recently it offered no free tier. That's changed now; Tidal Free gives US users access to Tidal's usual array of more than 90 million tracks, but does it with limited commercial interruption and a more modest 160kbps sound quality — similar to what Spotify and many other music services offer. Moreover, you'll only be able to choose shuffle play, rather than choosing specific tracks. Even so, it's a good introduction to the streaming service, in case you want to try out the catalog before stepping up to the paid version. Download Tidal for iPhone or Android. Tidal now has a free tier of service (but you'll have to upgrade to get Tidal's signature hi-fi audio quality). Dave Johnson iHeartOne of the oldest music streaming apps, iHeart has lost the "Radio" from its name but still works much like a modern radio, allowing you to favorite and follow artists and stream their music or listen to a vast array of radio stations, both local to you (you can search by zip code) and internet radio. iHeart is also a comprehensive hub for podcasts as well. The app has some other interesting features, like the ability to set a sleep timer that turns off your music after a set period of time. Download iHeart for iPhone or Android. iHeart remains one of the best ways to stream radio stations to your phone. Dave Johnson TuneInDon't be confused by the free trial screen the first time you start TuneIn; you can dismiss it with the nearly invisible X in the upper corner and use the app for free, with commercials, of course. And like iHeart, TuneIn's specialty is radio. You can stream a very wide selection of radio from this app, including local radio as well as talk radio, music stations, news, and sports from around the globe. There are more than 100,000 stations in total, and you can save your favorites for easy access. And like iHeart, TuneIn has podcasts as well. Download TuneIn for iPhone or Android. TuneIn has a wealth of radio and podcasts to listen to. Dave Johnson YouTube MusicPerhaps because YouTube has become such a popular hub for music videos, YouTube Music is here with a dedicated streaming music experience. The free version is ad-supported, of course, but you can upgrade to the ad-free version for $10 per month. Either way, the app delivers smart recommendations based on your preferences and has a large library of audio-only and videos (including live performances) to choose from. Particularly welcome: Many songs have lyrics as well. Download YouTube Music for iPhone or Android. YouTube Music has a great recommendation engine and lyrics for many songs. Dave Johnson SoundCloudWhile the other apps will give you access to mainstream and popular music, SoundCloud is where you can go to get the scoop on new, upcoming, and user-generated music you won't hear elsewhere. It's a popular resource for people to upload their own home-recorded tracks and for undiscovered artists to share their art. There's a vast library of music waiting to be discovered here, and SoundCloud gives you great ways to find music you might otherwise never have experienced — including a novel fast forward button that lets you slip around within a track. Download SoundCloud for iPhone or Android. SoundCloud is where you go for user-generated content and undiscovered indie artists. Dave Johnson
